Art Unit: 3742

Double Patenting

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 1-6 and 9; 7-8; 10-14; 15-16 and 17-18; and 19-20; (in the respective order) are rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1 (or 16) to 6; 11-12; 17 and 22-25; 1 and 16; and 24-25 (in the respective order), of U.S. Patent No. 6,639,197 since the claims, if allowed, would improperly extend the "right to exclude" already granted in the patent. The subject matter claimed in the instant application is fully disclosed in the patent and is covered by the patent since the patent and the application are claiming common subject matter, as follows: "A method of adhesive bonding by induction heating....at least one layer of electrically conductive material exhibits a thickness in the range of 0.01 mils through 3 mils; and exposing the susceptor structure to a magnetic field during a heating event for a time interval in the range of 0.05 – 10 seconds, inclusive, and at an average power density in the range of 10-5000 Watts per square inch of susceptor area, inclusive". Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because even though the claims of the present application have directed to different combinations (i.e., not including "exposing the susceptor structure to a magnetic field" during induction heating as recited in claim 1, or excluding the susceptor thickness as recited in claim 10, or excluding the susceptor thickness and time interval for exposing the susceptor to the magnetic field), The omission of exposing the susceptor to the magnetic field order to provide an adhesive bonding between the two substrates with the susceptor therebetween, the susceptor thickness and time interval in the claims of the present application has already been covered by the claim of the patent.

It is also noted that since the claims of the patent cover the average power density in the range of 10-5000 Watts per square inch of the susceptor area, the recitation of "the average power density of less than or equal to 1000 Watts per square inch, or less than or equal to 500 Watts per square inch" is found to be within the purview of obviousness as being covered by the patent claim.

Furthermore, there is no apparent reason why applicant was prevented from presenting claims corresponding to those of the instant application during prosecution of the application which matured into a patent. The claims of the present application are clearly appeared to be broader in scope than the claims of the patent. See also MPEP § 804.
